Republican Dead in New York.

The Republican party has in name and in fact become extinct in New York, as well as in Ohio.

There was a Republican State Convention, and also what was called a "People's Convention," held at Syracuse last week. The latter nominated the following State ticket:

Attorney General—D. S. DICKINSON, of Broome.

Secretary of State—HORATIO BALLARD, of Cortland.

Comptroller—LOUISA ROBINSON, of Chemung.

Treasurer—WILLIAM B. LEWIS, of Kings.

Canal Commissioners—F. A. ALLEN (long term); B. F. BUCH (short term).

State Prison Inspector—ABRAHAM B. TAPPAN, of Westchester.

State Engineer—WILLIAM B. TAYLOR, of Oneida.

Court of Appeals—WILLIAM B. WRIGHT, of Ulster.

Democratic Union Nominations.

The Tribune gives the recent political standing of six of the principal of these nominees, as follows:

DANIEL S. DICKINSON, who heads the ticket, is described as "always a Democrat of the strictest sect."

Mr. BALLARD was, "within a month, member of the Soft Democratic State Committee, and a warm supporter of Mr. DOUGLAS during the last Presidential election."

Mr. ROBINSON is "a Republican of Democratic antecedents."

Mr. LEWIS "was recently Comptroller of the city of Brooklyn," and "was elected to that post by the American party."

Mr. ALLEN, who is the Mayor of Buffalo, "entered the Republican organization from the Democratic party."

Mr. TAPPAN was a "Douglas Democrat."

Thus the leading candidates on the foregoing State ticket, three, according to the Tribune, are Democrats who voted for Mr. DOUGLAS last November, and all of them, with a single exception, are of Democratic antecedents.

While the so-called "People's Convention," which nominated this ticket, was in session at Syracuse, a Republican State Convention was sitting in the same city. Conscious of the weakness of their party, and its inability to stand alone, the Republican Convention made overtures to the other body for nominating a joint ticket. But the "People's Convention" would have nothing to do with them. They went forward, did up their work and then adjourned.

The Republican managers, remembering doubtless the story of MOHAMMED and the mountain, concluded as the "People's Convention" would not come to them, they would go to it. So they induced, confirmed and agreed to support the whole ticket of the other Convention had made, with one exception, nominating a Mr. TALLMADGE for Canal Commissioner in place of Mr. BAUCK.

This Republicanism in New York as in Ohio may be reckoned among the things that were, but are not. It is fast dying out as a political organization all over the country. But the amalgamation ticket, which its leaders have betted out in New York does not seem to be in better odor there than the mongrel No-party ticket in Ohio. Both are gotten up as a lure to Democrats to help certain men to get into, or retain office. Both are an acknowledgment that there is no salvation for the country, the Union and the Constitution, without resorting to Democratic men, measures and principles.

The next step to be a general rallying of the people to the old Union Democratic party as the only ark of hope or safety amid this fearful storm which threatens to overwhelm our Republic in anarchy and ruin.

Incidents of the Battle at Carnifax.

For the following from the Cincinnati Enquirer of yesterday, the 17th inst.:

We had the pleasure last night of a personal interview with the late General, Captain Carnifax, of the Tenth, who arrived at about five o'clock yesterday evening, on the steamboat Wave, in company with Lieutenant Fanning and Color Sergeant Connor, who were also wounded in the engagement at Carnifax Ferry. We found the Colonel at the residence of his brother-in-law, Samuel J. Broadwell, Esq., stretched upon an easy lounge, and as comfortable as the affectionate solicitude of "ministering angels" can render him.

The shot which disabled him passed through the calf of his leg, which must have been thrown somewhat forward, for the same bullet wound the calf of the gallant Colonel once more, and he was picked up by the enemy, and leaping the parapet died within the entrenchment of the enemy. Captain McGroarty informed us that the Colonel was unhurt by the wind of a cannon ball, and that he lay upon the ground, which was a couple of miles from the front, until he was picked up by the enemy, and he was then taken to the hospital.

It is pleasant to mark the enthusiasm which lights up the countenance of the commander of the Tenth while speaking of his regiment; and it is a pleasure to hear him say that the man in that regiment is devoted to their commander. "Why," said Captain Stephen, "there are no men but who would battle to the death if led by Colonel Lytle; and the sentiment came from the heart."

Captain McGroarty was simply ennobled in the bosom of his family, the pain of his wound materially assuaged by the sympathy and attendance of near and dear relations. He had narrow and really very good looks, and he entered the chest bare the shoulder, and passed out through the back, fortunately without coming in contact with any vital portion of the interior.

In this condition he lay for four hours, with the regimental flag, the staff of which had been splintered, in his possession. Uncertain how the fortune of the night might terminate, and determined that the chested banner should not fall into the hands of the enemy, he succeeded in scraping with his hand, as he lay upon his back, sufficient dirt to conceal it, but when fortune determined upon our side, the reaction was so great that, in spite of the loss of blood, which had formed a pool where he lay, he arose to his feet, and gallantly waving the flag, bore it to the camp.

About the time that Colonel Lytle fell, a shot struck his Secretary, John B. Green, in the breast, who was placed by the side of the commander. Mr. Green was the correspondent of the Enquirer, and with note book and pencil in hand, he was with the front rank when he received his wound.

"Mr. Green," said the Colonel, as they laid him gently by his side, "why in Heaven's name did you expose yourself to this casualty?"

"Colonel," he replied, "I came because I thought it would encourage the men."

We are happy to hear that Mr. Green's wound, although at first deemed mortal, has assumed a favorable turn, and there is well-founded hope that he will recover.

The Tenth sustained the loss of the fight for an hour and a half, and fully realized the high expectations of those who knew the fighting element of which they were composed. Led by their commander, not a man of them but who have stormed the batteries, and died where he stood, rather than give an inch.

The firing ceased to have been fearful, and the storm of bullets from the enemy's entrenched position was incessant; and yet our men behaved as cool and self-poised as could be expected of soldiers, although but few had ever met powder before. We do not disparage any other corps attached to our gallant army in Western Virginia when we say that the Tenth, thus far, has proved itself the crack regiment of Ohio.

The Confiscation Act.

The following is the Confiscation Act passed at the late extra session of Congress. As the President has required Gen. Farnsworth to modify his late proclamation in conformity to the provisions of this Act, it possesses a special interest at the present time. It will be observed that it is the fourth and last action that relates specially to the case of slaves:

An Act to confiscate property used for insurrectionary purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That if, during the present or any future insurrection against the Government of the United States, after the President shall have declared, by proclamation, that the laws of the United States are opposed, and the execution thereof obstructed, by combinations too powerful to be suppressed by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings, or by the power vested in the marshals by last act, or person or persons, his, her or their agent, attorney or employee, shall purchase or acquire, sell or give any property of whatsoever kind or description, with intent to use or employ the same, or suffer the same to be used or employed, in or for the abetting or promoting such insurrection or resistance to the laws, or any person or persons engaged therein, or if any person or persons, being the owners of any such property, shall knowingly use or employ, or consent to the use or employment of the same as aforesaid, all such property is hereby declared to be lawful prize of capture and shall be forfeited, and it shall be the duty of the President of the United States to cause the same to be seized, confiscated and condemned.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That such prize and capture shall be condemned in the district or Circuit Court of the United States having jurisdiction of the amount or, admiralty in any district in which the same may be seized, or in which they may be taken and proceedings first instituted.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the Attorney General, or any district attorney of the United States, in which said property may at the time be, may institute the proceedings of condemnation, and in such case they shall be wholly for the benefit of the United States; and any person may file an information with such an attorney, in which case the proceedings shall be for the use of such informant and the United States in equal parts.

In this condition he lay for four hours, with the regimental flag, the staff of which had been splintered, in his possession. Uncertain how the fortune of the night might terminate, and determined that the chested banner should not fall into the hands of the enemy, he succeeded in scraping with his hand, as he lay upon his back, sufficient dirt to conceal it, but when fortune determined upon our side, the reaction was so great that, in spite of the loss of blood, which had formed a pool where he lay, he arose to his feet, and gallantly waving the flag, bore it to the camp.
